Note To create a new layer, choose File → New. To work on one layer at a time, switch to Layers panel view (Window → Layers). In Figure 4-7, you can see three layers, all on separate pages. In this figure, the text layer is on top of the photos and the red-color and blue-color brushes are on the bottom layer. (If they overlap, you'll have to play with the order that you click each button to see what happens.) If you click the "Make All Layers Visible" button in the Layers panel, all three layers appear on one page so you can work with them simultaneously. To duplicate a layer, hold down the Ctrl key as you click on it. Alternatively, you can click and drag the layer onto the New Layer icon at the bottom of the Layers panel. (See Figure 4-7.) When you duplicate a layer, you'll have two versions of it, so you have to choose where you want to put it: * Place the duplicate layer on the top. This makes it easier to see and work with. * Place the duplicate layer below. This is more commonly used. In both cases, you can control how the layers behave by opening or closing the layer's dialog box, shown in Figure 4-8. The dialog box is a new feature added in CS5. It

Background ===== Lung cancer is the most common malignancy in the world and the leading cause of cancer related deaths \[@B1\]. The majority of patients present with advanced lung cancer, and have a poor prognosis. Despite surgical resection, and adjuvant chemotherapy, it is unlikely they will survive beyond 5 years \[@B2\]. Novel therapeutic approaches are urgently needed to improve clinical outcomes. Methods ===== We utilised a novel technique that allows the identification and manipulation of individual cells in lymph nodes, for imaging or collection of labelled cells from patients prior to surgery. Patients were identified with stage III non-small cell lung cancer undergoing curative, complete resection. Using a modified version of our method, cells were prepared using an ultrasound probe to ensure they were within 10 µm of the probe surface. Tissue was gently agitated to allow cells to release, while applied pressure ensured they stayed within the probe. Results ===== Using positron emission tomography, we were able to determine the precise location of cells in lymph nodes in patients (Figure 1{ref-type="fig"}). While using this method, a cell from the patient's lung could be isolated at the tip of the ultrasound probe before it was injected into the patient's circulation. A small amount of fluorescent dye was added, the isolated cells were then transported back to the laboratory where they were imaged immediately (Figure 2{ref-type="fig"}). !PET cell imaging.(1475-2867-11-63-1){#F1} !Image of fluorescently labelled cells.(1475-2867-11-63-2){#F2} Conclusion ===== Tissue specific cell delivery is a potentially viable route to target drug or therapy to individual patients. Long-term results of cervical disc arthroplasty. To review the long-term results and complications associated with cervical disc arthroplasty (CDA). Prospective and retrospective case series. One hundred thirty-five patients underwent CDA. Patients were reviewed at a minimum of 36 months (mean 75 months). Clinical outcome was measured with the use of the Visual Analog Scale, Neck Disability Index (NDI), VAS neck, VAS arm, Short Form 36 (SF-36), and Odom
